NUMBERS THAT COUNT

2 3 %

Perpetually kind people have 23% less cortisol (the stress hormone) and age slower than the average population!*

Did you know that there are actual health benefits to being KIND? According to the Random Acts of Kindness Foundation, there are many scientifically-proven benefits of kindness. Not only do kind people have lower levels of cortisol, kindness produces endorphins which decrease pain, and helps increase positive moods in socially anxious individuals.

In Olmsted Falls, we already KNOW how cool kindness is. It is so important to our school culture that it is part of the Bulldog Way that ALL kids learn: Be Safe, Be Respectful, Be Responsible, and BE KIND!

Practice kindness year-round, or dedicate some time during Random Acts of Kindness Week February 11-17 to being KIND. It costs nothing, and the benefits are SO rewarding!

If you're looking for ways to practice kindness, look no further than this LINK APPROVED link!

RandomActsOfKindness.org is an incredible resource for all things KIND! In addition to tons of resources for schools, families can download lesson plans for all ages with kindness activities to do at home, print out a monthly workplace calendar with ideas for adults to practice kindness at work, find more information about celebrating Random Acts of Kindness Week (see right!), print coloring pages, Kindness BINGO, and more!

The best way to get our kids to BE KIND is to show them how it's done! Make a commitment to kindness this year and make kindness the norm!

ONE DAY KINDER

By Julianne Allen
Family Engagement & Communication Specialist

Have you heard the news? Of course you have...it's a leap year! And while some of us may yawn (or even grimace) at the thought of an extra day in February, I'm excited. After all, other than the Summer Olympics, it the most fun thing to happen once every four years! (Note my deliberate omission of any reference to the NOT REMOTELY FUN AT ALL presidential election. Ugh.)

Here's the brief and kinda/sorta historically accurate origin of Leap Year: The Egyptians created a 365-day calendar that mimicked the Solar Calendar allowing them to keep their seasons on point. That worked for 3,000 years until Julius Caesar had to finally admit that winter was "a thing" and created his own 12 month, 365-day calendar knocked off from the Egyptians. (Rude, but probably too late for them to sue.)

A few years later somebody (nerds rule!) figured out that the earth actually has 365.24 days per year. So because he didn't already have enough going on, Caesar decided to declare himself Father Leap Year™ and decree that an extra day should be added to the calendar every four years to keep our solar calendar and our iPhones in sync. Or something like that.

So, we get an extra day this year. What will you do with yours? Because it is a school day, our kids will be ONE DAY SMARTER, as our Superintendent Dr. Jim "Julius" Lloyd likes to point out when NOT calling a "snow day". You'll probably be at work, unless there is some sacred leap day holiday that you can claim as a personal observance. So you'll be ONE DAY MORE GAINFULLY EMPLOYED, or ONE DAY CLOSER TO RETIREMENT, depending on how much you enjoy your job.

What about people who were born on February 29th? According to the History Channel, "February 29th is the rarest birthday someone could have. Still, at least 5 million people celebrate their birthday on leap day. Your odds of being born on February 29th are one-in-1,461." Hmm. I always thought that being born on 2/29 would be cool. It's an excuse for a big bash and more presents. Now that I think about it, the off-years must kind of stink. You have to pretend your birthday is 2/28 or 3/1. Your best strategy is to try to stretch your birthday celebrations out for a week or two like I do despite having a birthday no where near February 29th. It's the right thing to do in this or any case.

Anyway, about that extra day. Going with the theme of this issue of "In The Loop", could we find a way to be ONE DAY KINDER on 2/29? Could we do something on that extra day that will make someone else's extra day better? What if we ALL made 2/29 ONE DAY KINDER? We could involve our kids, spouses, co-workers, and whomever else we encounter that day. We could smile more and gripe less (I'm talking mostly to myself here!) We could think of someone other than ourselves for a day, and go out of our way to BE KIND. Unless of course, February 29th is YOUR birthday. Then you have my permission to BE KIND to YOURSELF and soak up the attention and love. It's your day!

No matter what you do on February 29th, make it count. We'll be waiting four years for this to come again, and who knows what will happen in between? (Did I mention the total solar eclipse that is coming to turn our lives upside down? More on that next month!) For now, Happy Leap Year to all who celebrate!

• What is LINK?

LINK is an acronym for Learn, Inspire, Nurture, Know. The LINK Program is a district-wide family-community engagement resource. The goal of the program is to connect the Olmsted Falls School District with parents and families, to encourage two-way communication, and to help parents support learning at home.
